

REVIEWED BY B. B. H. / HK DATE 30/10/68

73756311/11-146

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

54 162

CONFIDENTIAL

AIR POUCH

4 15

Department of State

150

302

INFO:

Amembassy Amman
" Baghdad
" Cairo
" DamascusAmembassy Jidda
London
Paris

2011/6/1

Amembassy BEIRUT

C 13 November 14, 1962

TOPIC:

U.S. Retention of Guantanamo Base
Is Difficult to Sell

TOPIC:

Despatch 204, November 10, 1962

() CLASSIFY AS: OA/DR
 () DOWNGRADE TO: 4 () RERATE: 4 () G/ADR
 () EXCISE () DECLASSIFY IN PART
 () DENY () INCOMPATIBLE
 FOR B6 or PA EXEMPTIONS

In all honesty, the Embassy must report that the arguments marshalled in Despatch 204 as to why the United States Navy should stay at Guantanamo are not very impressive in this part of the world. People like remember Suez 1956, and later on Sharhan and Suez, where the world, including the United States, upheld the principle that nations have the sovereign right to ask that foreign bases be removed. Arguments of long-term treaties, unrepresentative governments, and the general usefulness to the world of such bases are of little avail. Middle Easterners, in particular are convinced that in this day of long range aircraft and missiles there is any true American defence need served by a base only a hundred miles or so from United States shores.

The Embassy believes the only point in the reference telegram which may hold up here is that the subject of the Guantanamo base is a separate issue which is irrelevant to the fundamental issue in Cuba, i.e., the removal of the Soviet offensive in fact. This argument, however, implicitly admits that a day might come when the United States might conclude that Guantanamo is no longer necessary to Free World defence plans. It would be the Embassy's hope that such a determination could and would be made if and when the Castro regime disappears.

CONFIDENTIAL

Form 16-323

EQUITY

1967

REF ID: A61323

TOP SECRET//COMINT//REF ID: A61323

CLASSIFICATION

REF ID: A61323

REF ID: A61323

CONFIDENTIAL

Page 2 of
End No. 462
Desp. No.
From Beirut

Meanwhile, despite the formidability of the task, the Government may be assured that the Embassy will do its best, utilizing the substance in the reference telegram, to promote a favorable Lebanese disposition with regard to our Guantanamo etc. Fortunately, there is not at present any great emotion in Lebanon on this issue.

ABW

Arnold H. Meyer

REF ID: A65100

CONFIDENTIAL